Employers requesting evidence of medical conditions.

We are unable to provide letters for employers detailing individual's medical conditions and provide an opinion of what work they can/cannot do.

Patients who have been identified as being in a very high risk requiring shielding will be able to show their employer the letter they have received.

Patients who fall into the lower categories should request their employer carries out a risk assessment in line with the latest guidance available from NHS 111 website. It is a matter between the employee and employer what tasks can/cannot be done.

Patients can sign up to the NHS app to obtain access to their medical records which could serve as a way of evidencing the presence of a medical condition.

If you are self-isolating because you or someone you live with has symptoms then you can visit https://111.nhs.uk/isolation-note/ to get a note to give to your employer
